Calgarians flock to fair

- Lilac Festival began in the city in 1989
- Festivities spread over 13 blocks of 4th Street SW
- The celebration has been voted Calgary's best free festival for the past 13 years

@METRONEWS.CA

After days of downpours, the sun shone down on Calgarians who were out yesterday for the Lilac Festival.

"It's nice to finally get out of the house after a week of raining," said Nick Moskaluk.

With dozens of local vendors, plenty of spots to grab a bite and entertainment for kids, adults and even dogs, thousands of Calgarians lined 4th Street.

For first-time festival-goer Allison Fielding, the day was a good opportunity to get out with her two young girls.

"It's really nice," she said. "It's good that the weather changed and it's a sunny day."

Heather has been volunteering at the festival for six years and said the festival captures the spirit of the city.

"I think it's a chance to get out and walk around and see what Calgary has to offer," she said.

"It's just a real friendly, warm event. It's Calgary."

LIVINGJEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONews.CA

In 2003, I got my first job bagging groceries.

It wasn't exactly glamorous. Anyone garnering similar work will tell you horror stories of sweeping up entire bags of spilled flour or dropping a carton of eggs amid hundreds of angry shoppers.

But for all my troubles, I made $7 per hour. It wasn't bad for someone with so few commitments — most of my cash went toward essentials like sour candy and video games.

Over time, the cost of living in Alberta has jumped significantly. Unfortunately, minimum wage hasn't risen accordingly.

In fact, Alberta's minimum wage of $8.80 ranks second lowest among all Canadian provinces and territories.

British Columbia still lags behind at $8.75; however, that province is planning to bump its rate up to $9.50 in November and to $10.25 next May. Other provinces range between $9 to $11.

My question: Can someone really survive in Calgary on our present minimum wage?

To find out, my girlfriend and I have decided to live solely off two minimum wage incomes for the entire month of June.

After all of our regular bills, we'll each be left with little more than $100 to spend weekly on basic necessities like food, fuel and, hopefully, entertainment.

Our blog of the experience will go live Wednesday on metronews.ca/calgary. This week, we explore topics like haircuts and weekend brewskis. I encourage you to follow along and participate — we want to know how you save money each week.

Teaching grads are set to face uncertain future

► Calgary, Edmonton cut 1,000-plus positions ► Reality setting in as education students search for placements ► Future teachers hoping for best

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON
@METRONEWS.CA

The writing may be on the whiteboard for new teachers looking to get into classrooms next fall, but education students are staying the course.

The Calgary Board of Education has projected it will lose about 200 school-based staff positions and 172 central support positions next school year.

Layoffs could be avoided as the CBE projects about 200 retirements or relocations.

Jaclyn Fedorus is hoping her math degree from the University of Alberta will give her a better shot at a teaching spot when she completes her second degree in education.

"I am confident with my background I can find something — even if it means going up north for a while," Fedorus said.

Kristina Tsoukalas is nearly done her U of A education degree and said she will take substitute gigs to get her foot in the door.

"But I have heard that is not the best way, because then they just see you as a sub," she said, adding she hopes for a full-time elementary/special-education job eventually.

CBE board chair Pat Cochrane told Metro last month that while turning teachers away is a big concern, with a nearly $62-million deficit provincially there is no other choice.

"I'm sorry to be bringing that message ... but when you start with us, you are on a temporary or probationary contract. We have no commitment to you, you can go."

By the numbers

- The University of Calgary expects about 425 undergraduates and 1,100 graduate students in its education courses next fall.
- The University of Alberta has about 3,400 students in undergrad programs and 800 in graduate studies in education.
- The Calgary Board of Education has hired about 1,200 new teachers over the past few years.

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON/METRO

► About 1,000 fewer teachers across the province will be in classrooms next fall.

Teachers of tomorrow urged to stick it out

The Alberta Teachers Association president has a message for students coming out of education programs in the province in the coming months and years: We need you.

Postal workers inch closer to strike action

► Union leader: Proposed wage cuts will drive down pay for other work

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON
@METRONEWS.CA

There could be a longer wait for mail as Canada Post staffers get closer to a strike today.

Bev Ray, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) Edmonton Local, said she has a conference call this morning with the union's national board of directors and other chapter presidents to determine the next steps.

"There could be two outcomes, either a complete strike or a rotating strike," Ray said of what would happen if workers walked off the job this week.

Issues of contention for the unionized workers include sick leave, starting wages for new staffers and retirement age.

No contract

► Last Thursday, CUPW, without a contract since Jan. 31, announced it was ready to file 72-hour strike notice, but it has not yet.

"The best news would be if Canada Post wanted to sit down and bargain an agreement. Nobody wants to go on strike," Ray said.

But people who will be affected by a potential strike — Canada Post customers, possibly across the country — are not happy about possible interruption to their mail service.

"We could be greatly inconvenienced," said Edmontonian William Moffat.

"Don't they make enough? How much talent does it take to put a letter in a slot?"

Fridges full of rotting food create stink in Slave Lake

The waste services manager for an Alberta town ravaged by fire says his workers are racing against the clock to deal with refrigerators that are being dumped by returning residents.

Tom Moore estimates that up to 4,000 refrigerators and freezers might have been left on the curbs in Slave Lake after this past weekend.

Many are full of food that's been rotting since the town was evacuated two weeks ago. And while he said in an interview Saturday that the smell isn't too bad now, he figures that could change if they're left for another 48 hours.

"I contracted with a bunch of local people and said we'll do whatever we've got to do to get 'er done quick," said Moore, speaking on a cellphone at the community's landfill.

PMO denies border talk

► Leaders did not discuss 1967 boundaries, spokesman says amid glowing Israeli report ► Harper sidesteps questions on the issue at G8 summit

Prime Minister Stephen Harper did not discuss the G8 summit with his Israeli counterpart Benjamin Netanyahu, a Harper spokesman says.

The statement by Dimitri Soudas, Harper's communications director, appears to contradict a report in the Israeli newspaper Haaretz that Netanyahu phoned Harper before the summit to ask him to block G8 support for a Palestinian state based on 1967 borders.

Soudas said yesterday in an email to The Canadian Press that Harper did speak to "various leaders in the last few days, including the Israeli prime minister as well as the head of the Arab League."

But he added "there was no G8 discussion with Prime Minister Netanyahu."

"The PM's views are long-standing and well known on the Middle East process towards a two-state solution," Soudas said while Harper was visiting Greece after the G8 summit in France.

"Canadian policy on these issues is long-standing. It's important that any statement on the Middle East always have balanced references to the various positions and the G8 statement is a balanced statement."

In a speech earlier this month, U.S. President Barack Obama said talks between the Palestinians and Israel should be based on 1967 borders that existed before the Six Day War in which Israel occupied East Jerusalem, the West Bank and Gaza.

Haaretz said Israel was particularly concerned about the border proposal because at least seven of the eight G8 countries supported including it in the summit declaration.

The G8's final declaration issued Friday did not include any mention of borders in Israel-Palestine peace talks.

The Haaretz report said Netanyahu told Harper that mentioning the border issue would be detrimental to Israeli interests and a reward to the Palestinians.

As the summit concluded, media reports cited diplomats in saying the 1967 border proposal was omitted from the G8 statement because of objections from Canada.

Term nixed

One of the ironies of the election that finally delivered the Conservatives a majority government on May 2 is that it appears to have vanquished the "Harper Government."

- The controversial term has almost disappeared from official Government of Canada news releases after suddenly blanketing departmental communications in the months leading up to the fall of the Conservative minority March 25.
- Now, internal government documents obtained by The Canadian Press show that civil servants were being ordered by ministers' offices to use the term, and that they were "obligated to do so if asked."

Malta votes 'yes' to divorce

► Nation has long Catholic traditions, church's influence on citizens is still significant ► Turnout stood at around 72 per cent, low by Maltese standards

Malta — a tiny, staunchly Catholic Mediterranean island — has voted in favour of legalizing divorce, according to the results of a referendum.

Malta is the last remaining European Union nation that bans divorce. But what had been billed as a historic referendum has ushered in a "new Malta," according to a leading politician.

Yesterday's final results of the polling the day before showed that 52.67 per cent of people voted in favour of divorce, according to the Times of Malta.

Prime Minister Lawrence Gonzi, who had campaigned against divorce, said parliament would respect the will of the people in the nonbinding referendum and work on legislation to legalize divorce.

"Even though the result is not what I wished for, now it is our duty to see that the will of the majority is respected," Gonzi said in a televised speech reported by the newspaper.

The issue has been hotly debated and allegiances went beyond party lines.

"This is a conservative society, but Maltese still live like Europeans. This regularizes their lives," said analyst Saviour Balzan, whose newspaper, Malta Today, had campaigned in favour of the legalization of divorce. "It gives a new life-line to hundreds of people."

Balzan also said the "yes" victory makes Malta more European.

"Divorce is not an obligation for a member state, but it brings us closer to Europe," he told The Associated Press.

► It's alleged that Mladic ordered the execution of thousands of Muslims ► Ex-general considered a national hero by some Protesters throwing stones and bottles clashed with more than 3,000 baton-wielding riot police yesterday in Belgrade after several thousand Serbian nationalist supporters of jailed war-crimes suspect Ratko Mladic rallied outside the parliament building to demand his release.

About 100 people were arrested and 16 minor injuries were reported.

The clashes began after a rally that drew at least 7,000 demonstrators, many singing nationalist songs and carrying banners honouring Mladic, the former Bosnian Serb military commander. Some chanted right-wing slogans and a few gave Nazi salutes.

Nationalists are furious that the pro-Western government apprehended Mladic, 69, last Thursday at a relative's home, after 16 years on the run. Demonstrators demanded the ouster of Serbia's pro-Western President Boris Tadic.

Mladic's arrest is considered critical to Serbia's efforts to join the European Union, and to reconciliation in the region after a series of ethnic wars in the 1990s. But Serb nationalists in Serbia and parts of Bosnia still consider Mladic a hero, the general who against all odds tried to defend Serbs in the Bosnian conflict.

More on Mladic

- The UN tribunal charged Ratko Mladic with genocide in 1995, accusing him of orchestrating the massacre of 8,000 Muslim men and boys during Bosnia's 1992-95 war.
- Prosecutors say they have compelling evidence that Mladic personally ordered and oversaw the executions.
- Many Bosnian Serb soldiers pledge to follow Mladic until death.
- The massacre in Srebrenica, Bosnia, is considered to be Europe's worst atrocity since the Second World War.

All Serbs share blame: Mladic

Ratko Mladic, who is charged by a UN tribunal with genocide committed by his Bosnian Serb troops during Bosnia's 1992-95 war, says all Serbs should share the blame because they supported Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic during the bloody breakup of the former Yugoslavia in the 1990s.

"I didn't vote for Slobodan Milosevic, you did," Serbia's deputy war-crimes prosecutor Bruno Vekaric quoted Mladic as saying in jail, while he awaits extradition to a UN war crimes tribunal.

Mladic split up with his patron Milosevic in 1994 when the Bosnian Serb army commander refused an international peace plan. Milosevic died in 2006 in prison during his genocide trial at the UN warcrimes tribunal for Yugoslavia.

Mladic was arrested Thursday after 16 years on the run. "He said he is not a killer. He also said he does not hate Muslims and Croats," added Vekaric.

Naval port plans on ice

Environmental and funding concerns are adding years to the construction of an Arctic naval port considered crucial to enforcing Canadian control of the Northwest Passage.

The Nanisivik port in Nunavut was originally supposed to be at least partially up and running by next summer, following a promise made by Prime Minister Stephen Harper in 2007.

But no construction is planned for this summer and defence officials admit that the refuelling station, intended to give the navy a permanent presence at the eastern gate of the contested passage, won't be operating for years.

Investors await Bank of Canada rate decision

► RBC Dominion Securities last week assessed chances of a quarter-point hike in July to 12 per cent

The Canadian dollar could be under additional pressure on commodity markets this week after the Bank of Canada delivers its next announcement on interest rates tomorrow.

The dollar moved lower for a fourth week last week, reflecting slowing economic conditions, particularly in the U.S., and doubt about when the Bank of Canada will resume raising interest rates.

No one expects the central bank to hike its key rate tomorrow but traders will be anxious to read the bank's statement for clues as to when it will move the rate above one per cent, where it has been since September.

"We don't really even look for talk about imminent rate hikes next week," said BMO Capital Markets deputy chief economist Doug Porter. The Rate hikes

While the prospect of lower interest rates is great news for Canadian borrowers, holding off on rate hikes poses risks for the Canadian economy.

- Raise costs: Last week, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development urged the Bank of Canada to raise borrowing costs to demonstrate that it has a grip on inflation.
- One per cent: The OECD added that at one per cent, the Bank of Canada's key rate is "highly stimulative."

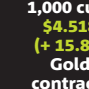

Bank of Canada was fully expected to resume raising interest rates in July, heralding a string of quarter-point hikes. But slowing economic conditions in much of the world has radically changed that outlook.

Veggie outbreak spreads across EU

Spanish vegetables suspected of contamination with a potentially deadly bacteria are being recalled from stores in Austria and the Czech Republic to prevent the spread of a deadly outbreak, officials said yesterday.

The death toll from the bacteria rose to at least 10 people, and hundreds across Europe have been sickened.

Czech authorities said 120 organic Spanish cucumbers were being pulled off shelves while their counterparts in neighbouring Austria announced that "small amounts" of cucumbers, as well as tomatoes and eggplants, were being removed from 33 stores.

EDUCATION SYSTEM CAN WORK FOR YOU

URBAN COMPASS

JANICE PASKEY
METRO CALGARY

This week, I will see my Mount Royal students receive their degrees.

Talk about a lovely vibe. Even those who didn't think graduating was a big deal get caught up in the excitement. The joy (relief) from parents is palpable — and there's the fancy clothes, too.

I've been teaching at Mount Royal for three years and covered higher education for years as a journalist. So here are a few thoughts: Going to school is one way to take advantage of the system.

The Alberta government pays about 64 per cent of higher education costs. Students pay about 24 per cent. The balance is from other sources.

Statistically, the more education you have the more likely you will be working, and the more you will earn. It's a good investment.

I heard our outgoing Mount Royal president Dave

Marshall say the greatest predictor of university success was the Grade 12 English grade. That makes sense because so much depends on the ability to read, comprehend and write well. This is why I admire the work of our study skills staff who provide free tutoring to students, either by appointment or drop-in. Librarians, too, are a tremendous support to students. You get a lot for university tuition — and, usually, there is a good pay-off.

University grads earn the most money, but any post-secondary credentials matter. What's interesting in Alberta is that fewer of our 17- to 24-year-olds are enrolled in any higher education (from hairstyling to university) than anywhere else in the country.

There's another trend: Women are the majority of university students these days, and our national statisticians even cite a threat to "assortative educational mating," or the propensity to marry someone with the same education. Who are the well-educated women going to mate with? Well, it seems, with a guy who might make more money, but with less education.

And there's no one path: It's OK to delay studies. Interesting research from U of C shows that those who return to university after working for a few years earn more after they graduate from university and are more likely to get a job. They are more motivated.

I don't know if our government gets enough credit for the higher education subsidies we enjoy. But taking advantage of them is a fine way to take advantage of the system.

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C.

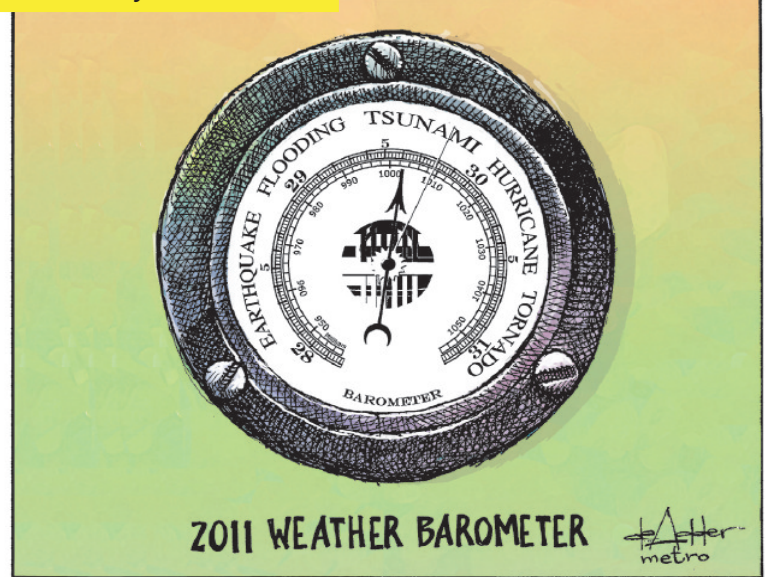

Archaeologists recovered the first anchor from what's believed to be the wreck of the pirate Blackbeard's flagship off the North Carolina coast Friday, a move that might change plans about how to save the rest of the almost 300-year-old artifacts from the central part of the ship.

Divers had planned to recover the second-largest artifact on what's believed to be the Queen Anne's Revenge but discovered it was too well-attached to other items in the ballast pile, said project manager Mark Wilde-Ramsing. Instead, they pulled up another anchor that is the third-largest artifact and likely was the typical anchor for the ship.

Apparently, pirates had everyday anchors and special anchors just as the rest of us have everyday dishes and good china.

In 1717, Blackbeard captured a French slave ship and renamed it Queen Anne's Revenge. Blackbeard, whose real name was widely believed to be Edward Teach or Thatch, settled in Bath, N.C., and received a governor's pardon. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEIRD NEWS

Case of mummy smuggling wrapped up

The shipping label said the mailed package contained replicas of Peruvian ceramics. An X-ray machine used by customs agents discovered it really held three skulls and a mummy more than 2,000 years old.

Authorities said Friday the package was intercepted at Argentina's central post office, and an Argentine citizen who was waiting for the shipment has been detained as part of an investigation into illegal trading in ancient cultural artifacts.

Officials speculated the package would have been relayed to a museum or a private collector in Europe, where such old bones are in demand because of the blankets and other woven material that surround ancient South American mummies.

A preliminary evaluation by Argentina's national archaeology institute determined the bones are from the pre-Inca Paracas culture on Peru's coast, and date from between the 7th and 3rd centuries BC, officials said.

Last year, Bolivian police foiled a similar mummy mailing enterprise and detained a woman who tried to send a Peruvian mummy to France.

► X-Men: First Class, which opens Friday, tells the story of how Magneto (played by Michael Fassbender), right, turned against his friend Charles Xavier (James McAvoy).

Can X-Men live up to title of a First Class superhero film?

► Opening this week, X-Men: First Class is the prequel to an extremely successful franchise

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

It's curious that while Hollywood seems to be making less movies in general, we are entering a summer that features no less than four big-budget superhero blockbusters — including this Friday's release of X-Men: First Class.

"It's probably down to the fact that maybe less people are going to the cinema and so they make films that are large in scale where you would want to go see it on a big screen," offered star Michael Fassbender recently from New York.

"Genres take hold and they run for a while — I would say that's one of the reasons (superhero movies hold up)."

It probably doesn't hurt that X-Men: First Class is also the prequel to a very successful franchise that began as pulp fiction in 1963.

The beginning of the saga, X-Men: First Class features the original mutant superheroes and how the once-upright Magneto

Good vs. Evil

Charles Xavier

A powerful telepath who can control minds, Xavier recruits fellow mutants to stop a global threat.

Magneto

Erik Lehnsherr discovered his power of magnetism under terrible circumstances and sets his sights on revenge with his mutant ability.

(Fassbender) turned against his friend Charles Xavier (James McAvoy).

"There's such an incredible history there," said McAvoy of the franchise's legacy.

"But the main thing that runs through all the X-Men saga — whether it's the comic books, cartoon-form or movies — is that sense of the outsider being the character that you're exploring ... that has to be one reason why it's stuck around for so long."

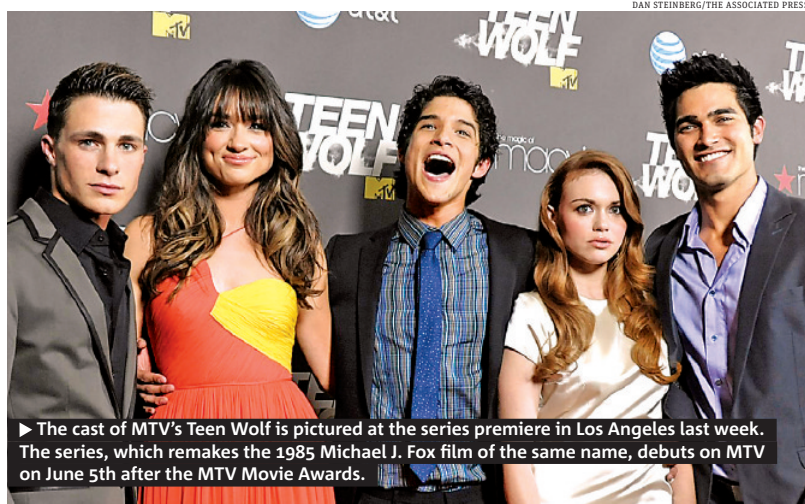

The previous films surely added fans to the franchise as well.

However, McAvoy and Fassbender weren't intimidated by expectations of portraying the respective roles that Ian McKellan and Patrick Stewart defined in the movies.

"I definitely watched the films," said Fassbender.

"I was going to study Ian McKellan, perhaps as a young man and his movements, nuances, voice and then decided not to do that and just use the source material available in the comic books — to just take a totally fresh look at it, wipe the slate clean and go for something new."

► The cast of MTV's Teen Wolf is pictured at the series premiere in Los Angeles last week. The series, which remakes the 1985 Michael J. Fox film of the same name, debuts on MTV on June 5th after the MTV Movie Awards.

MTV is back on the upswing again

► Network paying attention to generation shift

Over the years, one of the last things you'd see on youth-obsessed MTV was a parent.

Now moms and dads aren't unusual sights, even on the twin totems to wild behaviour and its consequences — Jersey Shore and Teen Mom — that are key to the network's latest resurgence.

Many young viewers targeted by MTV have no problem with parents being an active part of their lives, even during rebellious years, and expect their presence on television.

Understanding such generational nuances is crucial to MTV, which has the brutal imperative of reinventing itself every five or six years to appeal to a new group of 12- to 24-year-olds. Their viewers eventually grow up. MTV never can.

The latest reinvention has MTV with its best ratings in five years. The third season of Jersey Shore was the network's top-rated show ever, and the second season of Teen Mom similarly zoomed up the charts. The challenge now is figuring out how to build on that success and know when to be ready for the next reinvention.

This spring, MTV has steered in a surprisingly traditional direction.

MTV debuts a remake of the Teen Wolf series on June 5, brings back Beavis

Shore spinoffs

Blessed with success, MTV is looking to spread the Jersey Shore franchise with two spinoffs.

► In one, Nicole "Snooki" and Butt-Head later this year, has its own weight-loss series for teens and two Jersey Shore spinoffs in the works.

Between recycled ideas, spinoffs and a new focus on establishing scripted series, MTV's approach feels more like a typical broadcast network than ever before.

MTV viewers "want more from us," said Van Toffler, president of MTV Networks Music/Films/Logo Group.

"They expect more from us."

Toffler, who has been with MTV since 1986, and newly appointed network president Stephen Friedman, at MTV since 1998, have survived its ups and downs over the years. The latest cycle began with the expiration of Laguna Beach and The Hills.

After a reasonably successful first season of the reality competition series Paris Hilton's Best Friend, the second season proved disastrous.

"The audience checked out," Friedman said. "You saw them not believing it.

Polizzi and Jenni "J-Woww" Farley buy a new house together.

► The other focuses on what disc jockey Paul "DJ Pauly D" DelVecchio's life is like.
► Neither project has air dates yet.

We found out they wanted something more honest. The manufactured reality felt phony to them."

After all, how many BFFs can you really have, even if you're Paris?

A couple of years ago MTV Networks acquired rights to a short reality series, World's Strictest Parents, and it was put on the CMT network. MTV decided to run a few episodes, too, and was surprised at how many people watched. At the same time, MTV's head of reality programming had seen statistics about a rise in teen pregnancies and the series 16 and Pregnant was born in spring 2009.

Jersey Shore began in a completely different form, as a pilot of a competition series for VH1. It was retooled into what now exists and MTV knew just by the way people were talking about promotions for the new series that it had a potential hit.

"When you get a little bit scared," Toffler said, "you know something might work."

Kate, shmate: TV heavyweights eye Pippa Middleton

► First she had a facebook page dedicated to her derrière ► Now the likes of Barbara Walters and Oprah want Kate Middleton's sis to rock American TV

After making a splash at her sister's royal wedding last month, Pippa Middleton is apparently in high demand — especially among U.S. TV heavyweights like Barbara Walters.

"Years ago, when Kate broke up with Prince William briefly, Barbara tried to hire her as a View co-host," a source tells the National Enquirer.

"But now she thinks Pippa's so sassy, young and gorgeous, she'd be a fantastic fit. Ratings would be amazing!"

But Walters isn't the only one with her eyes on Middleton, as Oprah Winfrey "wants Pippa to host her own show for her OWN network," according to the source.

"O knows it would be a great ratings coup because Pippa's a star on fire — and Americans are so obsessed with the royals." ● METRO

Winehouse hits the bottle

Amy Winehouse is back in rehab, but according to the Sun, she had something of a whirlwind morning in London before checking in.

The tracksuit-clad singer was first spotted downing a small bottle of vodka at a shop counter.

"She seemed out of it. She was stumbling about, slurring her words," a source says.

"I was shocked to see her buy vodka so early in the day, and even more shocked to see her knock it straight back."

Winehouse then reportedly headed to a hair salon and demanded to use the restroom, only to emerge minutes later saying, "I just puked all over your bathroom," according to an eyewitness.

Winehouse's spokesman insists the singer did not throw up and that the comment was meant only as a joke.

says Brad Pitt.

Brad and Angie to wed for their wee ones?

Brad Pitt admits he and Angelina Jolie can't put off the topic of marriage forever, especially since their kids are getting more curious about it.

"The kids ask about marriage," he tells USA Today.

"It's meaning more and more to them. So it's something we've got to look at."

Of course, marriage talk isn't the only challenge in their house, as Pitt admits the constant presence of paparazzi can get daunting.

"We're hunted. Our kids have to live behind a gate. Outside, there are people with cameras," he says.

"But I'll take the trade-off. I never knew I was capable of experiencing so much love." ● METRO

► The Snuzzie turns a baby's cries into classical music, or the song of your choice.

Inventions we wish existed

► As a parent, you often think, I have a good idea! Here are some of our own (some tongue-in-cheek) with input from Mike Drummond, editor of Investors Digest, about their viability

The Dummy Dispenser

What it does: Hanging from the crib like a giant Pez dispenser, this invention distributes pacifiers when the baby needs one — automatically. If the baby is too young to grab the dummy herself, a robot arm, covered in kid-friendly foam material, extends and places it gently in her mouth. Says Drummond: "I suspect Pavlov would love this little number. It encourages motor skills and links desires and behaviour, assuming the dispenser responds to baby cries. I'd want the robotic arm to pull double-duty, and pick up discarded pacifiers."

The Snuzzie

What it does: An electronic muzzle device, the Snuzzie turns a child's cries into classical music — or whatever sound you wish, via downloadable MP3s. Future versions will be able to identify what your child wants from each cry — food, a diaper change, a nap. Says Drummond: "Finally a product that addresses the most annoying consumer group — babies! In all honesty, this is a product for the narcissistic sadist — which happens to cover a large market segment, given the popularity of botox, stiletto high heels and the Kardashians. Let's stick with pacifiers."

The Inflatable Stroller

What it does: Small enough to fit in your pocket, this product inflates, with the press of a button, to a full sized stroller, made of extremely durable plastic. Says Drummond: "I can get behind this product, having been behind far too many stroller-pushing parents at airport security checkpoints. This seems like a win-win-win for all concerned. The parent/caregiver gets convenience; the baby gets something airy to ride in; and I don't have to wait forever for the stroller to get folded up and shoved through airport X-ray machines."

The Self-Cleaning Floor

What it does: An invisible seal covering your hardwood floors (especially the area where your child eats), the Self-Cleaning Floor breaks down and absorbs fallen food particles in seconds, leaving no mess behind. Says Drummond: "Again, an invention I could get behind. And we're already seeing a close cousin of this type of technology being developed in the field of nano medical technology — tiny robots that eat cancer cells and such. But what does this do to the five-second rule?"

The Poolarm

What it does: Embedded into each diaper, the Poolarm reads your baby's body chemistry and lets you know, via a digital readout, if she's done pooping or if there's more to come. Says Drummond: "Normally I'm for anything that lessens the risk of coming into contact with feces. But unless you're just really into changing diapers, I don't see this as a huge seller. That said, the right amount of fear-based marketing could motivate consumers and scare the crap out of the diaper competition."

► This recipe makes eight mini loaves.

A perfect breakfast on the go or a great addition to lunch, this nutrient-filled banana bread made with whole-wheat, high-fibre and folate-rich avocados, and high-potassium bananas is a satisfying treat.

Preparation:

- 1 Preheat oven to 180 C (350 F).
- 2 In bowl, combine flour, baking powder and salt. In another bowl, combine avocados, bananas, honey and vanilla. Fold dry mix into avocado-banana mix. Spoon evenly into 8 greased mini pans.

Ingredients:

- 500 ml (2 cups) whole-wheat flour
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) baking powder
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) sea salt
- 2 pureed avocados
- 2 mashed bananas
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) honey
- 5 ml (1 tsp) vanilla extract

- 3 Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until toothpick inserted into middle of loaf comes out clean. Let cool then run knife along edges and invert onto wire racks.

Taste the waste: unwanted food to be resold as lunch

► Millions of tons of food is wasted every year in the U.K. ► But it's a culinary treasure trove for one café in Haringey, North London, that collects unsold supermarket food and cooks budget meals for hungry clients

ANTHONY JOHNSTON
GREEN@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS

We would all cringe at the sight of unsold food from shops and restaurant tossed into roadside skips, but how would you react to unwanted food served in a restaurant for a hungry lunchtime clientele?

This is exactly the business of FoodCycle, a London-based charity that turns surplus food from retailers into hearty budget meals.

They run a community café in Haringey, north

London, which is abuzz with residents and moms pushing prams come lunchtime, feasting upon dishes of unused food produce donated by local supermarkets.

The fruit and vegetables they get are a day or two past the shops' sell-by date. Resold meat or fish is off the menu "for safety reasons," café manager Jessica Veltman says.

Every year 1.4 million tons of food are wasted by U.K. retailers while 11.9 million tons is thrown out by households, says WRAP, the government recycling body.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

Good, not scary meal

Starter: Parsnip & carrot soup. It was a little too peppery. Were they trying to mask something?

Main course: Jacket potato, topped by aubergines, tomatoes, kidney beans and cheese. No sooner had I tucked into my meal than it began to look like a dog's dinner. But presentation aside, the potato filled a hole in my belly with tasty vegetable goodness. I was left satisfied.

Dessert: Apple & cinnamon cake. Somewhat soggy but in truth scrumptious.

Verdict: In the end, any 'horror food' images were a distant memory. The wholesome meal, and family-friendly ambience, put my mind — and indeed my stomach — at complete ease.

DO NOT THROW AWAY THAT EXTRA DRYWALL

How can I get rid of drywall from my recent home reno? Calvin of Vancouver

QUEEN OF GREEN

LINDSAY COULTER
GREEN@METRONEWS.CA

Whatever you do, do not put drywall (also known as gypsum board, wall-board, plasterboard, gypboard and sheetrock) into your residential garbage bins.

Drywall is actually recyclable.

Gypsum Recycling International estimates that 40 tons of gypsum waste is landfilled around the globe each day.

Search for a waste transfer station in your city that accepts gypsum drywall.

Residents of Vancouver can drop off "residential quantities" of drywall at any regional transfer station or at the Vancouver Landfill.

A "residential quantity" means one level pick-up truckload or less.

If you have a large load, contact New West Gypsum Recycling.

They recycle all non-asbestos-containing drywall from the region into new gypsum drywall.

Make sure that your drywall does not contain asbestos. To dispose of gypsum drywall containing asbestos, call 604-RECYCLE for disposal options.

While you're at it, check out how to recycle wood waste, too.

Clean, unpainted, untreated wood waste can now be recycled at transfer stations and the Vancouver Landfill.

Wood waste is added to the yard trimmings pile.

Clean and some treated wood are also accepted at Urban Wood Waste Recyclers' plant in South Vancouver.

Did you know you can also recycle asphalt shingles?

They can be dropped off at a few facilities around Vancouver.

Find the location closest to you on at metrovancover.org under Metro Vancouver Recycles listed under "Building Materials — Roofing / Shingles".

► As students return from school for the summer, parents brace for piles of laundry and late, late nights

After nine months away, campus and the place where college students grew up may seem like worlds apart.

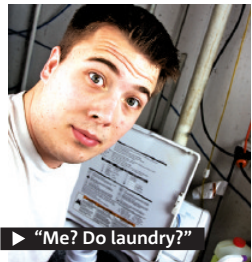

Summer at home – so often eagerly awaited by the students, their parents and siblings – is often a mixed-up time of happy reunions, unexpected challenges and weird new family dynamics

Timeless wisdom

Karen Levin Coburn's book, Letting Go: A Parent's Guide to Understanding the College Years, was first printed in 1988.

Families should discuss expectations soon after their students arrive back home – things like curfews, household chores, family dinners, and spending money, so everyone is on the same page, Coburn said.

as not-quite adult kids return temporarily to the nest.

"They have a whole new world, filled with new friends and new ideas, new independence," and that sometimes clashes with things back home, said psychologist Karen Levin Coburn, a consultant at Washington University in St. Louis and author of Letting Go: A Parent's Guide to Understanding the College Years.

Cindy Jez, a 55-year-old real estate manager in Richmond, Va., has gone through these transition summers several times with her two oldest boys, a junior and senior in college.

"The first time they come back there's always an adjustment period," Jez said. They're used to the freedom of college life, and "there are still boundaries at home."

"I try not to be a nag. I try to recognize that they're young adults," she says of sons Nolan, 20, and Cory, 22. "They need to have their own sense of responsibility. At the same time, I find myself constantly doing reminders. I'll send them texts: Picked up eight pairs of filthy socks in the family room last night."

"It's a balancing act", Jez said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thinking outside the box

► By bringing new ideas, Gillis has helped take Canucks to Cup final

From the day Mike Gillis was hired as general manager of the Vancouver Canucks, he's done things differently.

The status quo isn't good enough for Gillis. He believes just because something has worked in the past, it doesn't mean it can't be improved.

In his three years in Vancouver, Gillis has ruffled feathers and his ideas have been mocked. But with the Canucks preparing to play the Boston Bruins in the franchise's first Stanley Cup final in 17 years it's hard to argue with the results.

"We've tried to be as scientific in the approach of developing and interacting with players as we could be," Gillis said while watching a recent Canuck practice from the stands at Rogers Arena.

"I have no idea how much that has influenced the outcome. I think there is some influence for sure."

Gillis talks about the plan he devised for the Canucks. He won't give specific details of the plan, but points at the team on the ice as its product.

"We had a plan that we stuck to no matter what was going on around us, no matter what the speculation was around us," Gillis said.

"We knew we were going to have a good team. We didn't know if we were going to be able to add parts that would

Off the ice

Some of Mike Gillis's off-ice innovations have raised eyebrows.

- A sleep doctor advises players on when they should nap and even helps determine who should room together on the road.
- Gillis has tinkered with the travel schedule, having the team stay overnight after some road games instead of immediately flying home.

make us a really good team. When those parts began to occur, we got progressively better."

The Stanley Cup final begins Wednesday at Rogers Arena. Game 2 will be Saturday.

Gillis and his staff have managed to work within the confines of the NHL salary cap to build a Canuck team full of skill and deep in talent.

Goaltender Roberto Luongo was signed to a 12-year, $64-million US deal. It was a contract that satisfied Luongo while counting as a $5.33-million hit on the Canuck books each year.

Gillis convinced other players like Daniel and Henrik Sedin, Alex Burrows and Ryan Kesler to re-sign for less money than what they might have gotten from other teams.

Dan Wheldon was zipping toward the final corner of yesterday's Indianapolis 500, surely figuring the best he could do was another runner-up finish.

Hey Tom, I just want to do this so everyone can see how much I love you. You're a great inspiration and influence in my life. You made me into the great person I am today and I can't thank you enough. I know we been through hills and ditches but that won't stop us from reaching the top. I love you so much. <3 LOVE STOMY

My Handsome King. You are my best friend and my lover. I am so lucky to have you. Even though you're a continent away, I have you close in my heart and in my dreams. I'm just sorry I don't get to see your sexiness on the beach. Muah! From YOUR OBEDIENT SERVANT.

My Love. Keep ur head held high and don't let anyone bring you down my original g-star.rotpot got your back, baby. From RPANGEL

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Anything done as part of a team will go exceptionally well over the next seven days.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 If a friend or relative needs a shoulder to cry on today you will be there for them.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You are in the mood for fun and games and you'll get plenty of both over the next few days.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Make it your aim to stand back from what you are working on.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 You won't want to push yourself too hard today.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 You will be acutely sensitive to others people's problems today.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 An active imagination is generally a very good thing but don't let it run riot today or you'll see enemies behind every door.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 You need to find ways to catch the eye of employers and other important people.

$5,000,000 goes a long way to finding a cure.

We believe every step counts towards improving the health of thousands of Canadians. That's why we sponsor the TELUS Walk to Cure Diabetes – happening this year on June 12th. The Walk brings together thousands of participants across Canada, including 2,000 last year in Calgary. We've also supported the cause by giving over 5 million dollars to juvenile diabetes research. It's just one of the ways we can be counted on to give back. Which means that when you choose TELUS, you choose to help in countless ways.

Every customer helps us give where we live.
